Office of Higher Education

www.ctohe.org

Most colleges and universities in the United States require students to have earned a high school diploma or its equivalent as for admission. If you have earned a diploma from a school located outside of the country, many U.S. colleges and professional licensing agencies will ask you to have your foreign credentials evaluated. Proper documentation also is required to enter and remain in the U.S.

Foreign Credential Evaluators

If you have completed any education outside of the U.S. and are seeking to enroll in a Connecticut college or postsecondary career school, your credentials must be evaluated by an agency approved by the institution you plan to attend. Foreign credential evaluators are listed below. In addition, the U.S. Department of Education has information on foreign diploma and credit recognition at www.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ous/international/usnei/us/edlite-visitus-forrecog.html.
